For the prevention and cure of
BILIOUS AND MALIGNANT FEVERS
is recommended
AHN's ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS

THIS Medicine has been attended th a degree of success highly grateful the inventor's feelings in several parts the West Indies and in the Southern d Middle States, &c.

The testimony of a number of person n be adduced, who have reason to be ve that a timely use of this salutary re edy has, under Providence, preserved ci ives when in the most alarming cir mstances.

Facts of this conclusive nature speak ore in favour of a medicine than co mns of pompous eulogy founded on ere assertion.

It is not indeed presumptuously pro sed as an infallible cure, but the inven r has every possible reason that can re lt from extensive experience for be eving that a dose of these Pills taken nce in every two weeks during the pre alence of our bilious fevers, will prove infallible preventive; and further, at in the earlier stages of those diseases eir use will very generally succeed in storing health, and frequently in cases steemed desperate and beyond the pow r of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly ild, so as to be used with safety by per ons in every situation and of every age. They are excellently adapted to carry ff superfluous bile and prevent its mor id secretions—to restore and amend the ppetite—to produce a free perspiration nd thereby prevent colds which are of en of fatal consequences. A dose never ails to remove a cold if taken on its first ppearance: they are celebrated for re noving habitual costiveness—sickness at he stomach and severe head-ache—and ught to be taken by all persons on a hange of climate.

They have been found remarkably effi cations in preventing and curing disor lers attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserv d for use by every seaman.

From the Boston Chronicle & Patriot.

THE STEERSMAN's SONG.

When freshly blows the northern gale,
And under coursers snug we fly,
When lighter breezes swell the sail,
And royals proudly sweep the sky;
'Longside the wheel, unwearied still
I stand, and as my watchful eye
Doth mark the needle's faithful thrill,
I think of her I love, and cry
Port, my boy! port.

When calms delay, or breezes blow
Right from the point we wish to steer;
When by the wind close haul'd we go,
And strive in vain the port to near—
I think 'tis thus the fates defer
My bliss with one that's far away,
And while remembrance springs to her,
I watch the sails, and sighing say,
Thus, my boy! thus.

But see the wind draws kindly aft—
All hands are up the yards to square,
And now the floating stu'nsails waft
Our stately ship thro' waves and air;
Oh! then I think that yet for me
Some breeze of fortune thus mayspring,
Some breeze may waft me, love, to thee!
And in that hope, I smiling sing,
Steady, boy! so.

MISCELLANY.

COMMUNICATED FOR THE GAZETTE.

LORD BYRON.

This is true keeping—an eastern picture perfect in its foreground, and distance, and sky, and no part of which is so dwelt upon or labored as to obscure the principal figure. It is often in the slight and almost imperceptible touches that the hand of the master is shown, and that a single spark, struck from his fancy, lightens with a long train of illumination that of the reader.

It is another remarkable property of the poetry of lord Byron, that although his manner is frequently varied—altho' he appears to have assumed for an occasion the characteristic stanza and style of several cotemporaries, yet not only is his poetry marked in every instance by the strongest cast of originality, but in some leading particulars, and especially in the character of his heroes, each story so closely resembled the other, that managed by a writer of less power, the effect would have been an unpleasing monotony. All, or almost all, his heroes have somewhat the attributes of Childe Harold: all, or almost all, have minds which seem at variance with their fortunes, and exhibit high and poignant feelings of pain and pleasure, a keen sense of what is noble and honorable, and an equally keen susceptibility of injustice or injury, under the garb of stoicism or contempt of mankind. The strength of early passion and the glow of youthful feeling are uniformly painted as chilled or subdued by a train of early imprudences, or of darker guilt, and the sense of enjoyment tarnished by too intimate and experienced an acquaintance with the vanity of human wishes. These general attributes mark the stern features of all lord Byron's heroes from those which are shaded by the scalloped hat of the illustrious pilgrim, to those which lurk under the turban of Alp, the renegade. The public, ever anxious in curiosity or malignity to attach to fictitious characters real prototypes, were obstinate in declaring that in these leading traits of character lord Byron copied from the individual features reflected in his own mirror. On this subject the noble author entered on one occasion a formal protest—

"With regard to my story and stories in general, I should have been glad to have rendered my personages more perfect and amiable if possible, inasmuch as I have been sometimes criticised, and considered no less responsible for their deeds and qualities than if all had been personal. Be it so—if I have deviated in the gloomy vanity of drawing from self,' the pictures are probably like, since they are unfavorable; and if not, those who know me are undeceived, and those who do not I have but little interest in undeceiving. I have no particular desire that any but my acquaintance should think the author better than the beings of his imagining; but I cannot help a little surprise, and, perhaps, amusement, at some odd critical exceptions in the present instance, when I see several bards (far more deserving I allow) in very reputable plight, and quite exempt from all participation in the faults of those heroes, who, nevertheless, might be found with little more morality than 'the Giaour,' and perhaps—but no—I must admit Childe Harold to be a very repulsive personage; and, as to his identity, those who like it may give him whatever 'alias' they please."

Lord Byron certainly did the public injustice if he supposed it imputed to him the criminal actions with which many of his heroes were stained. Men no more expected to meet in lord Byron the Corsair, who "knew himself a villain," than they looked for the hypocrisy of Kehama on the shores of the Derwent water, or the profligacy of Marmion on the banks of the Tweed: yet even in the features of Conrad, those who have looked on lord Byron will recognize some likeness

"_____to the sight
No giant frame sets forth his common height; [again,
Yet, in the whole, who paused to look a-
Saw more than marks the crowd of common men; [confess
They gaze and marvel how—and still
That thus it is, but why they cannot guess.
Sunburnt his cheek, his forehead high and pale,
The sable curls in wild profusion veil;
And oft per force his rising lip reveals
The haughtier thought it curbs, but scarce conceals. [general mien,
Though smooth his voice, and calm his
Still seems there something he would not have seen: [ing hue
His features' deepening lines and vary-
At times attracted, yet perplexed the view."—Corsair, page 11.

And the ascetic regimen which the noble author himself observes is no less marked in the description of Conrad's fare—

"Ne'er for his lip the purpling cup they fill',
That goblet passes him untasted still;
And for his fare—the rudest of his crew
Would that, in turn, have passed untasted too; [liest roots,
Earth's coarsest bread, the garden's homeAnd scarce the summer luxury of fruits,
His short repast in humbleness supply
With all a hermit's board would scarce deny."—Corsair, page 4.

The following description of Lara, suddenly and unexpectedly returned from distant travels, and reassuming his station in the society of his own country, has, in like manner, strong points of resemblance to the part which the author himself seemed occasionally to bear amid the scenes where the great mingle with the fair:

"_____'tis quickly seen,
Whate'er he be, 'twas not what he had been: [last,
That brow in furrow'd lines had fixed at
And spake of passions, but of passions past;
The pride, but not the fire of early days,
Coldness of mien, and carelessness of praise;
A high demeanor, and a glance that took
Their thoughts from others by a single look;
And that sarcastic levity of tongue,
The stinging of a heart the world had stung,
That darts in seeming playfulness around,
And makes those feel that will not own the wound: [beneath
All these seem'd his, and something more
That glance could well reveal, or accent breathe:
Ambition, glory, love, the common aim
That some can conquer, and that all would claim, [strive,
Within his breast appear'd no more to
Yet seem'd as lately they had been alive;
And some deep feeling, it were vain to trace,
At moments lighten'd o'er his livid face.

* Dedication of the Corsair to Thomas Moore, the poet.

Extract of a letter, dated Trinidad, Oct. 6.—"We are just recovering in this island, from one of the most awful visitations of sickness and mortality that perhaps was ever known in this part of the world. Our worthy governor sir Ralph Woodford, had a narrow escape, and is one of the few that have recovered."

Self-love magnifies or diminishes the good qualities of our friends, in proportion to the satisfaction we take in them; and we judge of their merits by the terms they keep with us.

Too much sensibility, too much tenderness, proves the bitterest curse instead of the most choicest blessing: vexation and disappointment are its certain consequences.

ALEXANDRIA:
THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1817.

We understand from good authority, that the King of Prussia is a warm friend of the Bible Societies in his dominions.

A favorite General Von Diericke, (formerly Instructor of the Crown Prince of Prussia) is the President, and all the Ministers of State Vice Presidents.

There is more truth and good sense in the following paragraph, from the Montreal Herald, than many will be supposed to admit.

"In the United States manufactures never can flourish while wages are so high, and land so cheap; the best proof of this is the wonderful emigration every year, from New England to the western states. These hardy people despise the operations of spinning and weaving, and still more the idea of having a master or employer. Their glory is freedom and independence, which the nature of a vast country points out to them. As to the people of the southern states they are totally indifferent about every thing, but a good market for their rice, tobacco, cotton and indigo. England buys more of these commodities than all the rest of Europe, and in those states scarcely any other goods are imported but English, and some from France, chiefly silks."

VIRGINIA GYPSUM.

A correspondent of the National Intelligencer, to correct erroneous reports on the subject, states the fact, that "on the margin of James' river, about one mile below City Point, on the lands of George Rufflin, of Prince Georges county, a great many samples of the finest Gypsum have lately been discovered; some of them have been sent to New York, and there analysed, and pronounced as pure as any plaister ever imported into this country. It is yet, however, a matter of doubt whether there be any considerable quantity contained in the bank where these samples are found.'

A gentleman has arrived at New York from Montreal, who informs, that he rode 26 miles on the 2d inst. in a sleigh, the snow being 8 inches deep upon an average.

BOUNDARIES.

It is stated in the Albany Daily Advertiser, that "the survey on the Saint Lawrence has been completed about 40 miles at an expence of 30,000 dollars;" and that the "commissioner for running the northern line has with his attornies, exploring parties, &c. &c. been at the expence of at least 50,000 dollars for running 20 miles!"

The whole length of the boundary line between the United States and the British provinces is estimated at 2000 miles. What is the fixing of this line to cost the United States? At the rate of the forty miles on the Saint Lawrence, a million and a half of dollars? or take as your rate the twenty miles on the northern line, and you will pay the round sum of FIVE MILLIONS!! [N. Y. C. Adv.

Charleston, Nov. 10.

We are authorised to contradict the statement, relative to the engagement of Mr. Incledon, for the "Charleston Theatre," during the ensuing season. The terms proposed by that gentleman rendered it impracticable.

Baltimore, November 14.

On Sunday morning last, the schooner Traveller's Friend, Captain Allen, sailed from a port on the Eastern Shore of this state near to New Market, in Dorchester county, bound for Petersburg in Virginia, and thence for a port in Georgia, having on board besides the captain, two white men, & 27 negroes, men, women and children, claimed as slaves by the white passengers On Tuesday morning, in the mouth of the Patuxent, where the schooner was at anchor, while the captain and his two white passengers were below at breakfast, ten of the men slaves who were manacled, broke their fetters, declared themselves free, put the white men in irons, hoisted anchor and sail, and brought the schooner to Baltimore, where she arrived early this morning.

The captain, passengers, and nearly all the slaves, were this day brought before the Judges of Baltimore City Court, for the purpose of investigating the transaction. The two passengers state, that during the voyage up from Patuxent, they were robbed by the negroes of nearly all their wearing apparel, a large sum of money, and all their papers. They claim to have purchased the negroes as slaves, from various persons on the Eastern Shore.

November 17.

TROUBLE AT ALGIERS.

Captain Moody, of the brig Abinoam, arrived at this port from Gibraltar, from whence he sailed on the 5th Oct. states, that the day before he left, information was received, that a Revolution had taken place at Algiers—that the Dey had been deposed; and, together with his Prime Minister, had been decapitated; and that a merchant there of ordinary standing had been chosen to fill his place.

The Plague still raged at Algiers with considerable violence.

The American Squadron arrived at Gibraltar on the 1st of October, in 14 days from the coast of Algiers. [Pat.

Markets were very bad at Cape Henry, Hayti, on the 4th instant. Sixty millions of dollars were said to be in Fort Farrice, but none in circulation. [Ibid.

LATE FROM CAPE HENRY.

The ship Pilgrim ar. at Charleston on Sunday of last week, in 11 days fr. Hayti. On the 4th instant was boarded by a small privateer schooner, formerly the Jeffrey, of N. York, and treated politely. On the 20th Oct. a schooner, called the Mary Percival, put into Cape Henry, in distress—the supercargo had died on the voyage, and the captain and mate sick.—She was immediately taken possession of by Christophe, who had her under his own colors before the Pilgrim sailed.

On the 10th September, ar. at C. Henry the Spanish brig Phœnix, said to be a prize to the privateer brig Mexican Congress, Capt. Bugar, with a cargo consisting of wine, flour, dry goods and sugar. As soon as she arrived, Christophe also took possession of her, sold her cargo and deposited the proceeds in his own treasury.

Markets at Cape Henry on the 30th ultimo.—Coffee 314, Sugar 8, molasses 33 a 35 cents—and glutted with American produce. [Ibid.

FROM AMELIA.

Capt. Blair, ar. at Charleston from St. Mary's on the 10th instant, reports, that the United States brig Saranac had returned into the latter port from a cruise. There was nothing new from Amelia except the report that the Patriots were about to make an attack upon St. Augustine, by water; and the Morgiana brig, with her tender, and one other vessel, sailed on the Sunday previous, and were to be joined by some other vessel, when an attack would be made upon that fortress. [Ibid.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman of respectability at Curacoa, to his friend in Kingston, Jam. dated Oct. 14.

"In my last of the 5th inst. I informed you that the Spaniards asserted that gen. Paez had been defeated, which rumour was published in the Curacoa Courant, and no doubt has reached your island; but it is to the contrary, as he has been completely victorious. A vessel has arrived here from La Guira, which fled the embargo that was laid at that port, and communicates information that it was expected an emigration would almost immediately take place. The statement that Paez had been defeated, is contradicted from other channels, viz. by a vessel from Porto Cabello, as also by private letters from Caraccas, as well as from the Gazettes not mentioning a syllable of any victory.

"The Patriotic cause goes on well, one of their formidable armies is in Valencia, and the Spaniards are removing from thence all the valuables they can. The city and province of Cumana and Barcelona are in possession of the Independents. Morilla after having pillaged Caraccas, abandoned it and proceeded to La Guira, and it is expected he will be forced to evacuate it directly.

"Brion lost a leg in the naval engagement with the Spanish squadron, but victory crowned his conduct on the occasion.

"N. B. A vessel has just arrived from Porto Cabello, and landed last night sixty thousand dollars in cash, with several seroons of indigo, so that it might not be ascertained that it belonged to the Spaniards who had fled from that port.—She furnishes unfavorable accounts of the Royalists."

EXTRACTS FROM THE JOURNAL OF A VOYAGE TO THE MEDITERRANEAN.

CHAPTER IV.

"Where now, ye lying vanities of life,
Ye ever tempting, ever cheating train!
Where are ye now?" THOMPSON.

Where are ye?—Not in the angry waves that lash our little bark, nor in those surly clouds that menace in the horizon. All here is reality—the works of God alone are seen, unembellished by art and unadorned by fancy. The sun—the only object I could recognize, seemed now my only friend—his beams spread over the foaming billow, illumined the agitated surface, and gave it a thousand varied hues.

We were now in what is called the gulf stream, which is a current that rises in the gulf of Mexico and sets along the coast in a northerly direction, deviating gradually to the eastward, until its whole course forms the segment of a circle, which extends nearly to the Azore or Western Islands, where it is lost. Vessels bound from Europe to America, generally run to the northward of the Gulf, to avoid its current which is against them, but in going to Europe they frequently take advantage of it. Navigators ascertain when they are in the Gulf by the temperature of the water, which is much warmer than the ocean near it, and increases in heat as you approach towards its centre. There is also a strong current, which when opposed or crossed by the wind, causes an irregular bubbling sea, in fact, it appears at all times to be in a state of agitation, either from adverse currents within itself, or from the continual squalls of wind to which it is subject. I leave it to philosophers to account for the phenomenon—the fact is certain, that an entirely different climate prevails in the gulf stream from that which is experienced in the ocean near it. From the moment of entering it, the horizon is constantly obscured with thick clouds, and heavy squalls of wind and rain follow each other in quick succession. This was now the kind of weather we experienced, and our only compensation was, that it was carrying us fast to our destined port.

Aug. 13. During the next four days we met with no incidents worth recording, except those common to our situation. We were now completely in the Squall Manufactory, as the sailors term the Gulf stream, and if variety is pleasing, we ought certainly to have been highly gratified. At one moment the sky was obscured with black and heavy clouds, in the next they were dissipated by a brilliant sun and a gentle breeze, which were as soon succeeded by a tremendous gust of wind or a heavy shower of rain. The squalls generally came from the Northward and Westward, and it was not uncommon to have five or six of them in an hour. Besides this, we had other inconveniences to suffer;—The Enterprize, besides being very deeply laden, is what is termed a very wet vessel, and ships a great deal of water over the deck—so that besides the constant rains, we had the water ankle-deep on the deck from the commencement of the voyage. This was peculiarly disagreeable, as it obliged us either to remain below in a small hot wardroom, of which the smell was by no means agreeable, or to stand on deck with our feet in the water, and with the spray continually dashing over us.—I was never in a much more disagreeable situation; but it was still harder for the men, and I was much amused to overhear the serio-comic manner in which they bewailed their hard fate.—"I wish," said one, "that my master had sold vinegar, and kept me at home to bottle it off!"—"If ever I get back," said another, "I'll ship for a soldier aboard of some fort!" They little thought that the difficulties which they complain of are trifles, compared with the hardships and deprivations to which the soldier is subject. If the romances of Dibdin, which have turned the brains of half the world, were exploded, there would be found to be as little real danger or hardship at sea as in almost any other capacity in life. The sailor who receives his regular allowance of grog and provision, and who, when his watch is over, can turn in to a dry hammock, is a nabob compared with a soldier, who after marching all day, must frequently starve all night; and who must often put up with the cold ground for his bed, with little other covering than "the curtain of night," of which the poets speak—but which in my opinion is but a flimsy kind of drapery.

There is perhaps no species of music which has excited so much enthusiasm as what are termed sea-songs. There is a fascination in these compositions, arising out of the strange medley which they exhibit, of noble sentiment, blunt honesty, fine feeling and low humour—boldness of metaphor and technical quaintness. The scene too, where the fiction is laid, is admirably calculated to display the powers of the poet, and to excite the feeling of the hearer.—"The angry aspect of the raging deep," and "brooding terrors of the storm," have afforded more fine allusions than any other object in creation. Thus the seaman has become identified with the element on which he rides, and is only seen by the poet's eye, when sitting calmly aloft enveloped in darkness, or plunging fearlessly through the foaming billow. In this way these gentlemen, having all that is "awfully vast" at their command, can make up a very pretty story: the dangers, which the visions of fancy, and the dreams of ignorance and imbecility have suggested; the bravery—the careless self devoted bravery—with which those dangers are said to be surmounted, and above all the munificent generosity with which the wealth earned by such exertions is disposed of, are all minutely detailed. But still the picture is not complete without the mellow tints of love—and our hero must have a sweetheart. The parting scene is depicted as full of tender emotion, suppressed anguish and manly fortitude. Then we see Jack rocked on the billow, heaving the deep drawn sigh, or dashing a tear from his cheek as he thinks of his home, his friends or his faithful Sue. During his voyage he is encompassed by many dangers by which "his valour, skill and worth," become "renowned," and at length returns home loaded with riches; and now "wounded tars share his wealth."—his fidelity to his mistress, his generosity to his friends, and his openness to all are displayed, and to complete the sum total of his happiness, he pours the guineas into his mistress' lap, and the kind soul consents to receive himself there also.

All this is very pretty as a fiction, but when a lie has been told over and over, it begins at last to be received as truth; and we are told of the blunt honesty and generosity of a sailor, until we believe that it is so—while in fact there is no class of men who less deserve those epithets. A drunken sailor just returned from a long voyage with his pocket full of money is profuse,—not from liberality of heart, but because he scarcely knows whether he puts his hand in his pocket or his hat. Others feel vain of the character they have acquired, and throw their money away, to prove their title to it.

How different is the reality! at sea the sailor is a mere slave: habituated to bear the harshest and most ignominious treatment with apathy—he toils careless of the curses or condemnation of his captain and sleeps unconscious of having heard them. Separated from the wholesome restraints of society, custom, and even law, and accustomed to the lowest scenes of dissipation and impiety, their minds become callous to the feelings of honor or honesty, and almost dead to the ties of nature. What can we expect from uneducated men, without pride, law, or religion, and exposed to the worst examples? An "old sailor" is considered as a privileged person: he is at liberty to cheat whom he can, and his villanies are all called "man of war tricks," He will rob his messmate of the only shirt he has in the world...plunder a dying companion...or arrest the last morsel from his lips—and if detected will answer, "Sir, I'm an old sailor!" His life at sea is one round of sleep and slavery, and on shore, of intoxication and indolence; and in old age he boasts of the profusion which has reduced him to poverty, exults in the follies that have ruined, and the vices that degrade him.

These remarks apply only to the mere sailor; among the navy officers and in that respectable class of citizens commonly called sea captains, are many gentlemen of intelligence, information and liberal ideas.

WAS committed to the jail of this county, as a runaway, a Negro lad, who says his name is HENRY, and that he was sold to some Georgiaman, from the estate of William Randall, of Fauquire county, Virginia. He is a bright mulatto, about 5 feet 2 or 3 inches high, and has been in the habit of a race rider for Mr. Randall. The said lad run away at Fredericksburg, on his way out. Thompson, and by him sold to William Galt.—It is supposed she is now lurking about the district of Columbia or its vicinity.—The above reward will be paid for apprehending and securing her so that I get her. ## Fifty Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY, on Saturday evening, the 11th inst. my mulatto man, named NED, commonly called NED M'RAE alias SHRAWING. He is about 23 or 24 years of age, 5 feet 8 or 9 inches high, and was raised in Manchester. Ned is well made, high forehead and large flat nose: had on when he went away a grey coat and pantaloons, but as he was well provided with cloathing of various kinds, it is probable he may have changed his dress. It is believed he went off with his wife, who it appears left Richmond at the same time: she is very black, and, I believe, somewhat pitted with the small pox, talks a great deal, of short stature, and rather thick made. Ned is very artful, and may probably attempt to pass for a free man; he has a down look when spoken to. The above reward will be given if taken out of Richmond or Manchester, and twenty-five dollars if taken in either place, and all reasonable expenses paid for delivering him to the subscriber. ## James Kennedy & Son,

BOOKSELLERS,

KING-STREET, ALEXANDRIA,

RESPECTFULLY inform the public that they have just received from

Lee's Medicine Store,

No. 46, Maiden lane, New-York, a fresh supply of the following valuable MEDICINES:

Hamilton's Worm-destroying Lozenges,

Which have within sixteen years past cured an immense number of persons of both sexes of every age and in every situation, of various dangerous complaints arising from WORMS, and from obstructions or foulness in the stomach and bowels.

This medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of similar titles so commonly complained of as operating with violence; on the contrary a particular excellence of this remedy is its being suited to every age and constitution. It contains nothing but what is perfectly innocent & is so mild in its operation that it cannot injure the most delicate pregnant lady or the tenderest infant of a week old should no worms exist in the body; but will without pain or griping cleanse the stomach and bowels of whatever is foul or offensive, and thereby prevent the production of worms and many fatal disorders. The lozenges are particularly efficacious in carrying off all gross humours and eruptions, feverish and bilious complaints, and are the safest and mildest purgative that can be used on any occasion.

Description of Worms, and the symptoms by which they are known.

Worms which infest the human body are chiefly of four kinds viz.—The Teres or large round worm; the Ascarides or small maw-worm; the Cucurbitine or short flat white worm; and lastly, the Tænia or tape-worm, so called from its resemblance to tape. This is often many yards long and is full of joints. It is most hurtful and most difficult to remove.

Among the symptoms attending worms are—disagreeable breath, especially in the morning; bad and corrupted gums; itching in the nose, and about the seat; convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes privation of speech; starting and grinding of the teeth in sleep; irregular appetite, sometimes loathing food and sometimes voracious; purging with slimy and fœtid stools; vomiting; large and hard belly; pains and sickness at the stomach; pains in the head and thighs and lowness of spirits; slow fever with small and irregular pulse; a dry cough; excessive thirst; sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance, and sometimes the face bloated and flushed.

Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms should have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges, which have been constantly attended with success in all complaints similar to those above described.

A dose of this medicine given occasionally during the warm season, will effectually prevent "the vomiting and purging of children"—a dreadful disorder, which annually destroys thousands of the infant part of our citizens. It is likewise the mildest and most certain remedy known, and has restored to health and strength a great number when in an advanced stage of this fatal complaint. Particular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment in such cases.

Children generally take this medicine with eagerness; having a pleasing appearance, and an agreeable taste.

The Restorative Powder for the Teeth and Gums.

For the prevention and cure of BILIOUS AND MALIGNANT FEVERS is recommended

HAHN's ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS

THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings in several parts of the West Indies and in the Southern and Middle States, &c.

The testimony of a number of person can be adduced, who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy has, under Providence, preserved their lives when in the most alarming circumstances.

Facts of this conclusive nature speak more in favour of a medicine than columns of pompous eulogy founded on mere assertion.

It is not indeed presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason that can result from extensive experience for believing that a dose of these Pills taken once in every two weeks during the prevalence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventive; and further, that in the earlier stages of those diseases their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases esteemed desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age.

They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile and prevent its morbid secretions—to restore and amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which are often of fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance: they are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficatious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

Hamilton's Elixir,

A sovereign remedy for colds, obstinate coughs, asthmas, sore throats, catarrhs, and approaching consumptions.—To parents who have children afflicted with the HOOPING COUGH, this discovery is of the first magnitude, as it affords immediate relief, checks the progress, and in a short time entirely removes the most cruel disorders to which children are liable. The Elixir is perfectly agreeable, and the dose so small that no difficulty arises in taking it.

Hamilton's Grand Restorative,

Is recommended as an invaluable medicine for the speedy relief and permanent cure of
